Dear Warren,

Thanks for your letter of February 2nd.
At some point I will be glad to do the dialogue with the students, probably by telephone. Can you give us a couple of months and then call [redacted]
and we'll try to work it out.

It was good seeing you awhile back.
You're missed around the White House.

Warm regards,

Sincerely,

George

The Honorable George Bush
Director, Central Intelligence Agency
c/o The White House
Washington, D. C. 20500

Dear George:

It was a pleasure seeing you again last week, and my very best wishes in your new assignment. You are certainly the man who can bring credibility and stature to the Intelligence community during this most difficult time. I wish you well.

As I mentioned to you, I am teaching a class in the American Presidency at the University of Arizona. An important part of the Presidency is the Intelligence community, its role and function. Therefore, I cordially invite you to visit Arizona and have dialogue with the outstanding students with whom I am involved this semester. I can appreciate your desire to have two or three months on the job before you would undertake this, and therefore we should perhaps look for a mid- to late April date.

If a visit to Arizona is not possible, then I hope a conference telephone call with the class can be substituted. It will give the students an excellent opportunity to have personal communication with you and to direct the questions they may have for you to answer. I certainly hope that one of these two events is possible.

Once again, my best wishes to you, and I know you will do an outstanding job.

Sincerely,

Warren Rustand
